

Georja Calvin-Smith

Ms Georja Calvin-Smith is a British Paris-based international television news presenter, producer, writer, and journalist who hosts and moderates various forums globally.

Since 2007 she has worked as a journalist in the United States, Britain and France, on news, current affairs, and international documentaries. Early in her career, she worked as a news reporter and presenter in Manchester, England on TV station Channel M (circa 2010 and produced stories, features and documentaries for the BBC TV Network, and HBO in New York City.

In recent years, Georja Calvin-Smith has worked in various reporting, producing and presenter roles for France 24. After years of presenting news bulletins, she became the presenter for The Week in the Maghreb, which covered developments in north-central and northwest Africa. Eventually moving to cover the entire continent, she currently produces and presents the network's daily Eye on Africa bulletin, and anchors its weekly Across Africa TV-magazine show. She has reported from around the world, and interviewed many heads of state including the presidents of Nigeria, Mali, Ivory Coast, Namibia, Angola and Zambia.

Calvin-Smith has hosted numerous high-level debates and dialogues at international summits, organization forums, and corporate events, particularly throughout Africa, including events of the United Nations, the OECD, the World Bank, and several African-based international organizations.